Publications Marianne Hundt

Books
Articles and book chapters

Submitted. [with Rahel Oppliger]. *(The) fact is .../(Die) Tatsache ist ... focaliser constructions in English and German are similar but subject to different constraints. [International Journal of Corpus Linguistics]

Submitted. [with John Payne]. How weird are teenagers? Variation and change in the use of noun-name collocations. [Journal of English Linguistics]

Submitted. [with Gerold Schneider and Daniel Schreier] Pluralized non-count nouns across Englishes: a corpus-linguistic approach to dialect typology. [Corpus Linguistics and Linguistic Theory]

2018c. It is time that this (should) be studied across a broader range of Englishes: A global trip around mandative subjunctives. In Sandra Dehors, ed. Modeling World Englishes: Assessing the Interplay of Emancipation and Globalization of ESL Varieties. Amsterdam: Benjamins, 217-244. [doi 10.1075/veaw.g61.09hun].

2018d. It is important that mandatives (should) be studied across different World Englishes and from a construction grammar perspective. In Paloma Núñez Pertejo, María José López Couso, Belén Méndez Naya and Ignacio Palacios Martínez, eds. Crossing Linguistic Boundaries: Systemic, Synchronic and Diachronic Variation in English. London: Bloomsbury.

2018h. [with Elena Callegaro, Simon Clematide and Sara Wick]. Variable article use with acronyms and initialisms – a contrastive analysis of English, German and Italian. Languages in Contrast, published online, May 2018 [doi 10.1075/lic.16021.cal]

2009h. [with Nicholas Smith]. The present perfect in British and American English: has there been any change, recently? ICAME Journal 33: 45-63.

1998b. It is important that this study (should) be based on the analysis of parallel corpora: On the use of the mandative subjunctive in four major varieties of English. In Hans Lindquist, Staffan Klintborg, Magnus Levin and Maria Estling, eds. The Major Varieties of English. Papers from MAVEN 97. Växjö: Acta Wexionensia, 159-175.

1997b. Has BrE been catching up with AmE over the past thirty years? In Ljung, Magnus, ed. Corpus-Based Studies in English. Amsterdam: Rodopi, 135-151.
